

Pupil-Centred Reviews

A pupil-centred review is a way of deciding what support is needed for your child or to decide any changes that need to be made to their support.

Who will be there:

Your child is able they can choose who they would like to be there, but there will also be some people who have to be there.

Sometimes there may be lots of people involved in the review, such as health, social care and educational professionals as well as family and friends.

Where and when will it be?

The meeting will normally be held at school. A date and time suitable to you and your child will be offered. There will be at least one review a year.

What do you need to think about before the meeting?

The parent/carer form will help you to think about the things you want to say and you can use it to write down things you want to remember to say on the day.

It is important that you take time to think about the questions, record your thoughts in the spaces provided and return the form to the school. This will help to make sure that your views are listened to at the meeting.

What will happen at the meeting?

A pupil-centred review has a relaxed atmosphere, very different to other traditional meetings. Everything is set out to be as informal and comfortable as possible. There will be equal opportunity for everyone to say what they think is important.

Every review will change to meet the needs of your child, who is at the centre of the meeting.

One person, called the facilitator, will have the job of making sure that everyone can have their say and that the meeting comes up with targets and actions for change. The facilitator is most likely to be someone from the school and you will know who it will be before the meeting.

The meeting begins with everyone introducing themselves and possibly sharing something that they like and admire about your child.

The facilitator will explain what will happen in the review meeting, and then everyone will have the chance to share their views and knowledge about your child.

When everyone has finished giving their comments, you will all think and talk about what needs to change and what outcomes and targets you want to see.

At the end of the review:

By the end of the review the facilitator will make sure that there is an agreed action plan.

The action plan is to make sure that everyone can see what is going to be done to support your child to learn and to achieve their potential.

Everything on the action plan will be based on what was talked about and agreed in the meeting, including the views and ideas you and your child shared.

The action plan will say:

- What support your child needs to learn and develop
- Who is responsible for making sure that they get the support they need [a named person]
- When and where they will get this support
- How we will know if the support has helped your child in the way it was intended to

After the meeting you will have the chance to read the action plan, think about what has been agreed and discuss it with your child.

These questions are to help you think about what you want to say at the pupils-centred review and how you want to say it.
